It is often customary to say that a patient is in sound sleep if he snores. But snoring sometimes reaches unacceptable noise levels. It irritates the neighbours and compels them to shut window panes and family members to frown on you.

“Snorers are not good sleepers” medical researchers have recently said. The global medical fraternity was not fully acquainted with sleep-disordered breathing and it still remains an alien terminology. Snoring during sleep may be a sign, or the first alarm, of a dangerous phantom that is lying in the airway and trying to spread its fiery tentacles to the brain and the heart. The phantom is named Obstructive Sleep Apnea [OSA]

What is OSA? It is a condition where your upper airway gets constricted during sleep and the air flow to the lungs is compromised. As a result, the patient puts an increased effort at broadening, gets agitated and wakes up frequently during sleep. The next day, he feels drowsy and confused, and is unable to concentrate. As the disease progresses, the urge to sleep during the day time while at work becomes irresistible. Gradually, these persons develop high blood pressure, resulting in damage to the brain and the heart.

An appeal to men behind machines, men behind wheels and those in the midst of scientifically critical junctures, try and find ways to fill your nights with peaceful sleep and help society for safe and secure days ahead.

SIBLING RIVALRY

Answer the question given below, on the basis of your reading of the passage (5 marks)

Every family with two or more children often experiences sibling rivalry at one time or the other. Children in general, fight with each other for their parents' attention. They fight among themselves mostly on trivial issues. If it does not get excessive, this kind of rivalry can, in fact be a healthy competition that trains children to share, respect one another. They will learn to deal with frustration and displeasures in the maturing process.

The first borns generally feels that they don't have to share their parents' love and attention. But when the next baby or sibling come along, they feel neglected and that changes everything. The first child starts to feel that he or she is no longer the centre of attraction and that he or she is being sidelined because of the new one. Some children might develop negative feelings and emotional imbalance, which may lead to regressive behaviour.

Such problems could be averted if right moves are taken. One way is to explain the first borns about the arrival of a new child. They need to establish a connection with the new baby before it is born. Older children should be trained to show a positive attitude towards their siblings. They should be involved, along with their parents, in teaching their siblings social and manual skills, which in turn, helps them to accept them. Sometimes personality difference and parental conflicts to have an impact on the children. Parents have to show patience, understand their issues and should openly communicate with their children to resolve them.
