SECTION - A (READING)

20 MARKS

Q1. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:  (6 Marks)

The death of Dr. Christian Barnard, the famous transplant surgeon, has occurred at a time when many of his modern counterparts are facing difficulties. Many of the early problems, such as tissue rejection, have to a great extent, now been solved, thanks to the introduction of new drugs. However, there still remains a major problem -- the people in need of transplant surgery, far outnumber the available organs.

The shortage of organ donors has caused several doctors to call for urgent improvements to be made to the system by which organs are donated. Many countries, such as Britain, have a huge waiting list of people whose lives could be saved by giving a kidney, lung, heart or liver transplant, Sadly, many of them die before they reach the top of those lists.

Under the present British scheme, people are asked to carry donor cards, and/or put their names on the national donor register. Thus, if they lose their lives suddenly, for example, in a traffic accident, they have given permission in advance of their deaths for their organs to be used. If they have not done so, surgeons are faced with the task of asking the distraught next-of-kin for permission to use the organs of the deceased. Of course, often the relatives are too upset even to think of such a thing until it is too late. Organ transplants have to take place quite soon after the death of the donor.
Dying and donating organs is not something most of us like to think about and only about 14% of people have registered. Now, it has been suggested that instead of the present register, there should be a register of people who wish to opt out of having their organs removed for transplant surgery.

Increasing the number of donors is made more difficult because it is such an emotive issue. Just recently, an article in The Journal of the American Medical Association showed that half of the families in the United States refused, when asked for permission to use the organs of their loved ones.

Answer the following questions by selecting the most appropriate option from the ones given below:

Q2. Read this version of a poem about the grass by Emily Dickinson, then answer the questions : ( 1 x 6 = 6 Marks )

The Grass

by Emily Dickinson

The grass so little has to do,—
A sphere of simple green,
With only butterflies to brood,
And bees to entertain,

And stir all day to pretty tunes
The breezes fetch along,
And hold the sunshine in its lap
And bow to everything;
And thread the dews all night, like pearls,
And make itself so fine, —
A duchess were too common
For such a noticing.

And even when it dies, to pass
In odors so divine,
As lowly spices gone to sleep,
Or amulets of pine.

And then to dwell in sovereign barns,
And dream the days away, —
The grass so little has to do,
I wish I were the hay!

Choose the best answer and write in your answer sheets:

1. What does the speaker of the poem say the grass does with sunshine?
   a) holds it in its lap
   b) threads it all night
   c) stirs it
   d) bows to it

2. What does the grass do at night?
   a) entertain the bees
   b) hold the sunshine in its lap
   c) thread the dews like pearls
   d) bow to everything

3. Why does the speaker say she wants to be the hay (or grass)?
   a) It has so little to do.
   b) It is a simple green color.
   c) It can dream.
   d) It smells divine.

4. To what does the speaker compare the odor of dead grasses?
   a) Sunshine
   b) Butterflies
   c) spheres of simple green spices gone to sleep

5. Why does the speaker probably wish she were the hay?

   a) "to mix"
   b) "to move"
   c) "to make a lot of noise"
   d) "to notice"
Q3. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow: (8 Marks)

1. By far the most common difficulty in study is simple failure to get down to regular concentrated work. This difficulty is much greater for those who do not work to plan and have no regular routine of study. Many students muddle along, doing a bit of this subject or that, as the mind takes them or letting their work pile up until the last possible moment.

2. Few students work to a set time-table. They say that if they did construct a time-table for themselves, they could not keep to it or would have to alter it constantly since they can never predict from one day to the next what their activities will be.

3. No doubt some temperaments take much more kindly to a regular routine than others. There are many who shy away from a weekly time-table and dislike being tied down to a definite programme of work. Many able students claim that they work in cycles. When they become interested in a topic they work on it intensively for three or four days at a time. On other days they avoid work completely. It has to be confessed that we do not fully understand the complexities of the motivation to work. Most people over 20 years of age have become conditioned to a work routine and the majority of productive workers have set aside regular hours for the more important aspects of their work.

4. Our society insists on regular habits, time-keeping and punctuality and whether we like it or not, if we mean to make our way in society, we have to comply with its demands. We need not stick too rigidly to plans and time-tables but there must be plans. Otherwise effort is wasted and time is dribbled away to no purpose. A sensible routine of work, so far from destroying spontaneity or creativity, should in fact, reduce to a minimum the effort of coping with the various activities of life.

5. The other obstacles to the regular planning of study are the many distractions of student life: sports and activities, novel surroundings, friendships, internet surfing etc. You need to find a sensible balance between all these competing demands on your time. To do this you need to be quite clear about your goal. The primary goal of any sort of higher study must be scholarship and professional qualification. Having a good time is no doubt important and a part of student life but they are secondary to your primary goal of study.

3. (a) On the basis of your reading the passage, make notes on it using headings and subheadings. Use recognizable abbreviations wherever necessary. Give the passage a suitable title. (5 Marks)

(b) Find words which mean the same as: (1x3=3 Marks)
(i) fixed and regular way (Para 1, 3)
(ii) not flexible (Para 4)
(iii) barrier or hindrance (Para 5)
