BAPU'S THREE MONKEYS

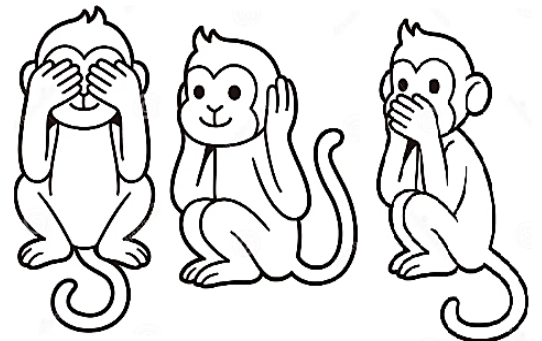

Mahatma Gandhi was a great man of India. He is called the 'Father of the Nation.' People call him 'Bapu' also. He always kept a model of three monkeys in his room. Each of them teaches us a moral lesson.

The first monkey keeps both its eyes covered with its hands. It says, "I see no evil." He advises us not to see any evil. A good child should see noble things only.

The second monkey keeps both its ears covered with its hands. It says, "I hear no evil." He advises us not to listen to anyone who speaks evil things. A good child should hear noble things only.

The third monkey keeps its mouth covered with its hands. It says, "I speak no evil." In this way, he advises us not to speak evil things. A good child should speak noble words only.

THE FISH UNITE

Deep in the forest, there was a big river. All kinds of fish lived there. Each group of fish was different. They lived and played separately, because they were not friendly. The elder fish kept telling the younger fish to remain together and united. But the younger fish did not listen to them.

One day, a big fish named Sim, came into the river. She started eating the small fish one by one. Everyday some fish from each group went missing.

The small fish groups got confused and discussed about this matter. Some of them doubted Sim.

After that all fish groups went to their elders and sought their help to get rid of Sim. Then the elder fish told that, this was the reason we had told you to be united. They gave them an idea. The younger fish listened carefully and understood the plan.

The next day when Sim came to eat the small fish, she saw a much bigger fish than herself. All the small fish groups had united to make one giant fish.

Sim was very frightened. She swam fast, ran away from the river as fast as she could and never came again. The little fish cheered, "Hurray! We scared her away!" They celebrated their victory and the elders explained that unity gives them the power to face any danger.

DO GOOD HAVE GOOD

Once a lion was sleeping under a tree in a deep forest. A mouse lived in a hole nearby. It saw the lion sleeping. It came out and began to jump over the lion. The lion got disturbed and roared angrily at the mouse. The mouse tried to run away. But before that the lion caught it in its paw.

The mouse was scared. "Please let me go! Said the mouse. "If you let me go, I will pay back your kindness one day!"

"You are funny!" said the lion. "How could a mouse help a lion?"

The lion laughed and let the mouse go home.

Some days later, the lion was caught in a hunter's net. The lion tried several times to set free. But he could not get out of the trap.

The lion roared in anger. The mouse heard the lion and ran to the net. The mouse said to the lion, "One day you showed mercy to me, today I will save your life". The mouse cut all the net with its sharp teeth. The lion was set free. He thanked the mouse.

PROUD REX

Once in a forest, there lived a group of crows. One of them, Rex, was stronger and faster than the rest. He could fly higher and faster than other crows. He often boasted that he knew a hundred and one ways of flying. The other crows admired him and made him their king. Soon, Rex became proud and arrogant.

One day, an eagle named Aquila came to the forest. The crows praised their king before him, and Aquila wished to meet Rex. Bowing before the crow, Aquila said, "O great King, how many ways can you fly?" Rex proudly replied, "I know a hundred and one ways. Watch me!" He showed his acrobatic flying, while Aquila watched calmly. Then Rex said, "Now you show me your way". Eagles fly very high and fast. So Aquila rose high into the sky. Soon he was soaring in the sky and flying very fast. Rex tried to follow but could not keep up with the skill of eagle. Soon, he grew tired and fell into the sea. The arrogant king was about to drown. Aquila quickly swooped down and saved him. He picked up king Rex with his strong claws and took him back to the forest.

As king Rex recovered, he realized his foolishness. Ashamed and humbled, King Rex thanked Aquila and realized that pride always leads to a fall. From that day on, Rex became humble and never boasted again. The wise Aquila and the humbled Rex became good friends.

Moral: Be humble. True greatness lies in modesty.

HOW GREAT GOD IS

Each little flower that opens,
Each little bird that sings,
He made their glowing colours,
He made their tiny wings.
The purple-headed mountain,
The river running by,
The sunset and the morning,
Brighten up the sky.
He gave us eyes to see them,
And lips to tell,
How great God is,
Who made all things so well.
